Memphis Fair.

Commences on Monday 10th of October next, and continues six days. The premiums on cotton amount to $3,000 while very liberal premiums on all articles exhibited, the whole premium list amounts to $5,000.

C. E. Bowers, and O. W. Hollings are our authorized agents to receive and remit for subscribers for the fair.

We are forced through necessity to call upon our numerous patrons to remember, that they owe us bills, which may have been of long standing and that we want money. Although it nearly takes our breath away to write this dreadful sentence, yet the truth must be told.

The Miss & Mrs. R. R. have issued the following circular regarding the fair and freight of articles shipped to the fair. "Parties desirous of visiting the fair can obtain special tickets of the Agents at one fair for the round trip. The tickets include the rates from Memphis to fair grounds and return, and ticket of admission to the fair grounds, the price of the same being added to the rate on this road. The return ticket will be stamped at the fair grounds, otherwise it will not be valid. Persons ticketed for exhibition or show articles for exhibition over this road, will be entitled to a free certificate of the Society. Premium list can be seen upon application to the Agents."

A Husband kills the Deceiver of his Wife.

On Saturday the 10th inst Mr. R. J. Jennings a well known and respectable citizen of this county, killed a man by the name of Frank Williams, on the Sardis and Pecon Lake road in this country, a few miles from the Lake. Williams was a foreigner and worked from place to place as a hired laborer. Jennings went from home for the purpose of procuring arms, having none at home, and was returning, when he met Williams in the road about one mile from Jenning's house. Williams was in a bugle, which a negro had let him ride to town, Jennings stopped him and after some alteration, shot him four times and then stoned him with a knife.

The cause of the difficulty we learn, was about as follows. The wife of Jennings is at times enraged and fancy's the return of a former deceased husband, Bobt. C. Bass. Williams had hired Williams as a laborer and while at his house, Mrs. Jennings took up an idea that Williams was her former husband, Bass. Williams took advantage of this delusion, and created a continual intimacy between them, Jennings however, this intimacy, ordered Williams to leave his place. Williams at length went, but told a colored man on the place that he would go, as he was sick then, but that he would soon return and put Jennings out of the way, and take possession, that Mrs. Jennings loved him better than should Jennings. These facts were afterwards communicated to Jennings. This was on Friday before the killing.

For the Pastoral Society.

Written in memory of my little friend Henrietta Marchant, which died Sept. 1870.

Sweet Henrietta I aint you dead;
And is the cold, cold grave thy bed?
Will we never see thee more,
Now thy brief, young life is o'er?

No, not dead! she is only asleep;
Oh! then for Eddie doesn't sleep;
For she was so tired of life,
And now where there's no strife.

Dear sister Kate and cousin Grace,

Pray tell us where she is laid;

She's sleeping in the quiet earth,

Sleep gentle Henrietta, sleep.

JUN. 1870.

Died at his residence in this country on the 26th inst. of Congestive disease Mr. J. W. Obrian.

The deceased was an upright man, a good citizen and exemplary Christian. He leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his untimely end.

We have been favored this week by a communication from our fair friend "Sun Beam." May that glowing beam come occasionally to light the columns of the STAR.

The Miss & Mrs. R. R. have issued the following circular regarding the fair and freight of articles shipped to the fair.

Symptoms without assignable cause, the physical strength and animal spirits give way, and a strange torpor falls alike on the body and intellect. Thermes high or too painless, but the heat is violent, and the system seems to have departed and an indifference to the laws of life, and even the grave responsibilities, takes the place of that earnest interest in both which characterizes every well balanced mind when in a healthy condition.

This state of partial collapse is often the premonitory symptoms of some serious malady. It indicates unmistakably that the vital powers are languishing and need a stimulant. In such cases the effect of the great tonic is wonderfully beneficial.

The great tonic wakes up the system from its drowsiness. The secretions and the circulation receive a new impetus. The relaxed nerves recover their elasticity under the operations of the specific like the slackened strength of a musical instrument in the process of tuning. Energy and vitality are replaced by energy and vivacity the spirits are cheered and alighted a burden while the sense of depression lessened, becomes once more enjoyable. That such a radical change should be produced by means entirely devoid of the powerful alkaloids and minerals so extensively used in modern practice, may seem incredible to those who pin their faith on the medicinal efficacy of active poisons, but if these sceptics will take the trouble to enquire of those who have tested the corrective andorative virtues of the Bitters under the circumstances described, they will find the statement to be true.

Bolting Cloths.

Persons desiring to purchase the best article should call on T. B. McEwen, agent, 263 Main street Memphis, Tenn. See advertisement.

Good merchants advertise and can appreciate the advantages of it, while the old or fossil or antediluvian age "can't see it," and consequently is left high and dry upon a small unprofitable trade, while the man of progress who goes and is seen marches onward to success, and our citizens are an index to the plauter and country merchant who are worthy of being classed amongst the active, enterprising business men, who desire the trade of this country. Put this in your pipe and smoke it. 2

Death is at the Door.

In all these complaints the principal evidence shows a want of red blood, and Mr. Churchill, in his work on Diseases of Persons says:

"Bearing in mind that the blood is remarkably deficient in red corpuscles and the known properties to correct this condition, suggests it to be relied on, the best of which is the Citrate of Calcium.
